50 YEARS
YOUR SUCCESS Our Passion

VIEWPOINT

By Trustee Gordon Hodges, Hamptonville, NC

STAY INFORMED, STAY INVOLVED!

I could write for pages and not say anything else more important than my headline above. I firmly believe that in order for any membership organization to be strong and effective in servicing its membership, the membership must take the initiative to be accurately informed and become involved. Plain and simple, the American Simmental Association belongs to you, the members, and you must take an active role in making your Association successful. Now that being said, I also firmly believe that your Trustees and employees of the ASA need to provide the membership with available ways to stay informed and involved.

As for staying informed, technology and our way of life in general have changed a lot since I previously served on the ASA Board from 1990-1996, and these changes are very positive. Back then, in the “old days”, we did not have the technical tools that we have today, such as a very informative website, numerous BLOGS, weekly ASA eNews blast, and now even the trendy smart phone apps. All of these tools provide our membership a way to stay informed, so please use them.

As for staying involved, I feel that somewhere over the past 20 years, our Association has failed the membership in making it easy to become involved and I feel our membership has failed at trying to be proactive in being involved. I am not referring to participating in junior events or attending major livestock shows. I am referring to being actively involved in your Association business, managing for today and planning for the future. If I only achieve one thing in my current tenure as an ASA Trustee, I want it to be providing a way for membership to get more actively involved.

In my first Board meeting in April 2014, I made a motion in general session that ASA establish a fall open membership meeting along with an educational program. Our new Fall Focus evolved — an event that would bring back open committee time welcoming interaction from membership, an open board meeting to all attending, and a one-day educational program focused on the current technology and services of our Association. I expressed that I would like to see this event be similar in structure to the Summer Conference held for decades, except preference of venue would be more educational than vacation, such as university venues that are pro-SimGenetics. I was pleased that this idea was well received and passed unanimously by the ASA Board. In that same meeting, it was discussed that due to extensive planning, time constraints would make it impossible to plan for a 2014 event and the first Fall Focus would be planned for 2015. Your Board left that meeting expecting our first Fall Focus to be held in 2015; however, your ASA staff went to work immediately and a few weeks later the Board received an email advising us that staff was comfortable they could host the first Fall Focus in Bozeman in 2014 and they put together and hosted a fabulous event. This event was well attended and everything I had hoped for, so now that the bar has been set high, I challenge the membership to use this event to its fullest . . . attend and become involved!

When this Viewpoint comes out in the September issue of the Register, our second annual Fall Focus in Gettysburg, PA, will be only a week or so away; this may be short notice for making plans, but I urge you to make an effort to be there. If you are proud of, depend on, and want to make a difference in the ASA, then come get involved! ♦

Celebrating 40 Years of Bringing Quality Cattle Your Way

7P Ranch 40th Consecutive Annual Production Sale

7P Ranch got its name from the seven members of the Prud'homme family. From the start, the ranch has always been a family endeavor. Joe and his wife, Mary, who passed away in 2009, along with their sons Joey and Steven, and daughters Carol, Sharon and Sheila worked together to build and grow the 7P Ranch legacy. Although Joey, Steven, Carol, Sharon and Sheila now have their own families and careers, Joe, with their support, has continued the steadfast goal of 7P Ranch — to produce practical cattle for practical cattlemen.

7P Ranch is one of the largest and longest running SimGenetic programs in the United States offering functional cattle produced with proven genetics from decades of extensive use of A.I. Since the start of the Simmental breeding program in 1974, 7P Ranch has registered over 10,000 head of cattle with the American Simmental Association — something very few ASA members can say. This long running commitment to Simmental and the cattle business in East Texas helps make the 7P program a solid and special one. It only takes one tour of the ranch with Joe to appreciate the years of breed improvement and feel his love and passion for this business.

7P Ranch is and always has been in it for the long haul. After all these years you can bet that the guesswork is taken out of the genetics. We invite you to come help us celebrate this milestone, our 40th Consecutive Annual Production Sale.

Joe and the entire Prud'homme family would like to thank all our faithful buyers over the years.

For additional information on our 40th Annual Production Sale and for the full story of 7P Ranch, go to our website at www.7pranch.com.

How A Dream Became Reality

By Dan Rieder

“Any success that we have had traces directly to three primary reasons,” says Loren Berger, a long-time advocate of Simmental genetics whose ranch is located midway between Stapleton (population: 300) and North Platte (25,000). “First and foremost is the Good Lord’s blessing; secondly, family has been critically involved in our development, and finally, we’ve discovered that relationships are a key element to our continuing growth. Our ranch business has expanded far more than I ever anticipated.”

Berger’s ranching experience has surpassed his wildest expectations. “If someone had told me 32 years ago that I would be in my current financial position of owning my own ranch free and clear, I would have said that they were dreaming, because I just didn’t think that was possible,” he continued. “We have gone from owning almost nothing to managing this ranch to leasing it to owning it outright.”

After growing up on a diversified livestock operation in northeast Kansas, Berger enrolled at Kansas State University. While at KSU, he met his future wife, Peggy, a farm girl from central South Dakota. “Even before we got married, we agreed that eventually we’d like to own our own ranch and raise our children in that environment,” he reported. “But, we also knew there was no opportunity for us to go back to either of our family operations. I have a twin brother and we are the oldest of seven children.” While earning his master’s degree in animal science at KSU, he shared an office and became fast friends with former ASA Executive Vice President Jerry Lipsey.

The Route to the Ranch

After marrying Peggy and completing his education in the mid-1970s, Berger and his bride took a rather circuitous journey to ranch ownership. His first position after college was a three-year job as a herdsman for a purebred Simmental operation in northeast Iowa. When that herd was relocated to Missouri, he was accepted for a position with the University of Nebraska’s West Central Research and Extension Station at North Platte. That’s where he met and developed a working relationship with Dr. Don Clanton, who was in charge of beef cattle research and would be instrumental in his future life-changing decisions.

“I was there for three years and really enjoyed our time with the University, but still had that dream of getting involved in an operation where we could start our own cowherd along with building some equity in our own business. So we left the University setting, moved to northeast Nebraska and went to work for another Simmental seed-stock operation,” he said.

A spring shower spawned this spectacular shot.

A Nebraska breeder combines tireless effort, innovative thinking and attention to relationships to bring a long-time wish to fruition.

“A couple of years later, Dr. Clanton called me and said ‘I wonder if you’d consider coming to work with me privately.’ He had leased this very ranch, the ranch we now own. He had about 100 purebred Simmental cows and was also part owner in a nearby feedlot. He wanted me to work part-time procuring cattle for the feedlot and the rest of my time would be spent managing his cattle,” he recalled.

“I told him I would accept his offer if I could run some cows of my own. He agreed to that request so I borrowed some money and bought 10 cows. That arrangement continued for the next 12 years, by which time my cowherd numbers had grown to 30 head,” he said.

In 1993, Clanton, who had served as an ASA Trustee from 1985 to 1992, decided to retire. He offered to sell his equipment and to lease his cowherd to Berger. He also volunteered to accompany Berger to a meeting with the ranch owner to see if Loren could assume the lease. “The owner agreed and that is how and when I really got my start,” he states.

In keeping with his habit of enhancing relationships, he worked closely with his new landlord. “He had encountered some financial setbacks and called us several times to see if we could pay our rent early. We complied with his requests and never questioned him,” Berger says. “So, when he got ready to sell, he called me and offered it to us first. That was his way of repaying the favor. We paid fair-market price and made our last payment in 2014.”

Establishing Herd Identity

“The Clanton cowherd I took over was an excellent set of cows, but they were traditional Simmental, spotted and colored. At that time, those kind of cattle were being discriminated against and I figured that it would be financial suicide to continue down that road,” he commented.

“After thoughtful consideration, I decided that the answer might lie in the production of hybrid bulls. I knew from the existing research that there were tremendous advantages to the hybrid cow in terms of lifetime productivity and the benefits of breed complementarity. Even back then, there was at least a $100 advantage for the crossbred cow when compared to the traditional purebred British breeds,” he said.

Berger’s decision to focus on hybrid Angus x Simmental cattle put him well ahead of the curve. In 1993, years before SimAngus™ became such a popular, well-accepted industry term, he had coined Herdsmasters to describe the composition of his cattle because at that time hybrid and crossbred were not favorably accepted terminology.

“All of our cattle have some combination of Angus and Simmental genetics, ranging from 7/8 Angus to 50-50. When I say ‘Angus’ I’m referring to both black and red. We use the Herdmaster name as a product label, and even call our ranch Berger Herdmasters,” he continued.

Today, his cowherd has expanded to 350 head, which runs on 2,000 acres of deeded land and another 3,000 acres of leased pasture. The ranch is located on the southern edge of the famed, grass-rich Sandhills, which encompass a sizeable portion of Nebraska’s prime cattle country.

All females, including heifers, are bred to highly proven AI sires. “Most of our customers keep their own replacement females and many of them retain ownership, so we concern ourselves with a wide range of selection criteria. We rely heavily on ASA’s innovative $API (All Purpose Index) and our customers are increasingly using and enjoying $API as well. They like that it incorporates all economic factors into one relatively easy-to-understand index,” he says.

Home to Bozeman

Every summer hundreds of AJSA members hit the highway with truckloads of family members and trailer loads of Simmental and Simbrah cattle. This year for 54 AJSA members, the Regional and National Classics were just the beginning of their AJSA summer. As soon as they made it home from the Classics, they were scurrying to do laundry and repack for the biennial AJSA Summit Leadership Conference. This August 3-6, 54 AJSA members from 17 states and three Canadian provinces traveled to Bozeman, Montana, to participate in the Summit Leadership Conference.

The Summit is one of the few times AJSA members get together without cattle. Although the participants arrived by plane, there was no shortage of cattle discussion. During the four-day conference, participants listened to speakers and went on tours that promoted the “Speak Out! Make It Loud!” theme, focusing on beef advocacy.

To kick off the conference on Monday, the group visited the original American Simmental Association (ASA) headquarters for a tour and educational sessions with Dr. Wade Shafer and ASA staff members. The group visited Bozeman at a special time in Simmental history, as ASA is in full swing in construction of the new headquarters building. The juniors were one of the last groups to tour the original headquarters building and the first group to visit the new one.

Back at the conference center, educational sessions focused on developing the next generation of agriculture advocates. Participants heard from many different speakers, including internationally-known keynote speaker Eddie Slowikowski on becoming the best version of yourself; ASA Director of Science and Education Dr. Jackie Atkins on a crash course in animal breeding and genetics; and creator of #AgProud, Ryan Goodman of the Montana Stockgrowers Association, on promoting the beef industry in social media. After the classroom sessions, the group loaded up to travel across Montana, visiting ORigen bull stud, the Billings Livestock Commission, and finished up the day traveling into the Bridger Mountains for a cookout and campfire at the Hayes Ranch.

Long before sun up on Wednesday morning, the group ventured south to Yellowstone National Park for a day of sightseeing in southwest Montana and northern Wyoming and whitewater rafting on the Yellowstone River. The participants wrapped up the conference on Wednesday evening with a visit to Montana State University and the first AJSA Beef Advocacy Contest. “We developed the Beef Advocacy Contest to focus on industry issues and how to handle them in public settings. We want to prepare our AJSA members to be great spokespeople for the beef industry,” said Kaylie Huizenga, Chairman of the AJSA Board of Trustees Leadership Committee.

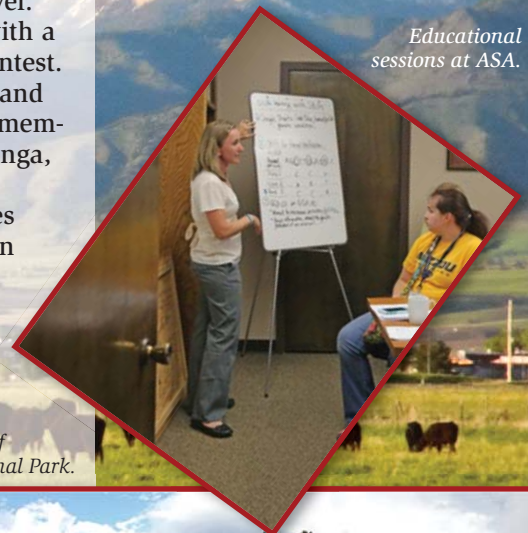

Now in the third year, the Summit Leadership Conference continues to foster the development of Simmental youth. Hosted by the American Junior Simmental Association Board of Trustees and planned by the Leadership Committee, the Summit is made possible from the many generous donations of Simmental and Simbrah breeders. ♦

“I know that hybrid bulls CAN stabilize a herd in any combination of British x Simmental breeding. It is a much simpler method than the two-or-three breed rotational systems, which are difficult to manage,” he said. “We have found that it is the most efficient way to maintain hybrid vigor.”

For the past 21 years, the Bergers have held an annual bull sale the second Saturday in February at the fairgrounds in North Platte. “The past two years, we’ve sold the bulls on video, and have sold into eight or nine different states. We sold 155 bulls this past year at a phenomenal average of $7,800 — a far cry from 1995 when we sold 55 bulls at an average of $1,800.”

He pays special attention to honing sound relationships with his customers. “We feel that it is a privilege to provide genetics that work for them, maintaining year-round contact with those individuals. In addition, we personally deliver 95% of the bulls we sell — which allows us to develop face-to-face contact on each of their operations, learning what their breeding goals are,” he said.

Berger points out that some of those sale bulls originated from four cooperator herds. “Those breeders have purchased females from me in the past and their herds are very similar to mine. We also use the same AI bulls, which enables me to select a uniform set of 150 sale bulls from a cow base of more than 1,000 head. It has been a mutually beneficial relationship for each of us,” he said.

All of Berger’s data is processed through the American Simmental Association. “We do that because that’s where we can get across-breed EPDs, which means that when we put together our sale catalog, regardless of the percentage of Angus or Simmental, they’re all comparable. Every cow we own is listed in the ASA data base,” he points out.

Berger’s love of family frequently surfaces in conversation. He and Peggy raised two children, both of whom graduated from high school in Stapleton, the only town in Logan County.

Aaron and his wife, Elise, live in Kimball, where he serves as an extension educator with the University of Nebraska. Their daughter, Sarah Busch, is married to Charlie, a minister who pastors a church in Chadron. “We have eight grandchildren with another on the way,” he says with obvious pride. “And we’re fortunate that they live within a reasonable driving distance from the ranch.”

He is quick to credit his herdsman, Tyrell Rousey, for his contributions. “He’s been with us for 11 years and is a multi-talented young man. I can be gone for several days and never worry because I know he can handle any emergency that comes up. He also runs some cows and sells several bulls through our sale — so our relationship is similar to the one that I enjoyed years ago with Don Clanton. His wife’s name is Deandra and they’re the parents of Aiden, who is 3,” he added.

“My infatuation with Simmental actually began way back in 1971 when I bred some purebred Herefords to a Simmental bull,” he concluded. “The production of those half-blood calves left an indelible impression on my mind about the value of the cross-bred female and we continue to benefit from that quality more than four decades later.” ♦

Hats Off for Cancer
Giving Hats to Children with Cancer

~ 2015 ~

Service Project

For the second year, the AJSA Board of Trustees held a service project at the 2015 AJSA Classics. This year the Trustees chose Hats Off For Cancer, a nationwide organization that gives hats to children that are battling cancer to help make a child's day a bit happier and their smile a bit brighter.

Starting at the AJSA Regional Classics, AJSA members from around the country gathered hats of any kind for Hats Off For Cancer. Many state associations and livestock businesses donated new farm hats to contribute to the great cause.

The Trustees set out with a goal of donating 500 hats. Thanks to the overwhelming support of the AJSA members and families, the AJSA donated more than 1,250 hats to the following children's hospitals throughout Texas; MD Anderson Hospital of Houston, Cook Children's Medical Center of Fort Worth, Children's Medical Foundation of Dallas, and Texas Children's Main Campus of Houston.

The AJSA Board of Trustees and American Junior Simmental Association would like to thank all of the AJSA members, families, and business for their generous donation.

State Booth Contest

Judges agree on Iowa's eye-catching denim debut!

Congratulations

to the Iowa Junior Simmental Association on capturing the honor of outstanding state booth at the 2015 National Classic!

During a week of spicin' things up in College Station, Texas, the Iowa juniors made sure everyone caught a glimpse of the place to be seen in 2016 — the 36th annual AJSA National Classic hosted by the Iowa Junior Simmental Association. This year, the Iowa juniors created their booth around the 2016 National Classic theme, denim and diamonds. With the help of state advisors and parents, the juniors gathered photos from the different events and shows and photos of their members who represent the Iowa association on the national level. The 12 Iowa juniors traveled more than 15 hours to exhibit 24 head at the 2015 National Classic. It was a successful week for the group, earning many top 20 finishes and a newly elected AJSA trustee, Kiersten Jass.

STANDOUT SIMMENTAL JUNIOR GIBSON PRIEST NAMED “AJSA HERDSMAN OF THE YEAR”

“Gibson has mastered the art of leading by example. This might not seem like much to some; however, for a young man at a period in his life where setting an example for others is not necessarily the “cool” thing to do by peer standards, it is the utmost compliment. His competitive spirit, continual drive to learn, and his ability to always put his best foot forward with little to no inhibition make him a natural leader and role model to younger AJSA members and adults alike. His personable demeanor and likeable nature only further increase the potency of his leadership.”

This is an excerpt pulled directly from the Herdsman of the Year nomination form describing Gibson Priest of Cartersville, Georgia. Gibson was recently named the recipient of the 2015 AJSA Herdsman of the Year Award, an honor that is reserved for one superior AJSA member at the National Classic each summer.

Among the nearly 300 AJSA participants, Gibson’s name rose its way to the top to be added to the short but prestigious list of AJSA Herdsman of the Year recipients. With the American Simmental Association’s strong focus and beliefs in educational contests, this award takes a different spin and is reserved for a junior member who is well respected in the Simmental industry, prideful in their cattle both in the show ring and at home, positive in their outlook, diligent in their work-ethic, and upholding of the honor, dignity, and responsible nature of a future cattleman. This is a steep list of qualifications, which Gibson could effortlessly check off.

Gibson’s connection to the Simmental industry links to his grandfather who raised Simmental cattle but passed away when Gibson was quite young. His Simmental roots propelled him through his many successes in 4-H, FFA and the Georgia Junior Cattlemen’s Association. Gibson’s knowledge and success in the cattle industry has come from years of dedication, hard work, and education. As a sophomore at Georgia Highlands College, He aims to attend the University of Georgia to complete his degree in Agriculture Education and Communications. He then plans to continue on to complete a master’s degree in Agriculture Communications and work in Extension to give back to the youth programs that developed his foundation for success.

Classroom education is only the brink of Gibson’s involvement. He intertwines his knowledge and real world skills on a daily basis to care for cattle. He works as a herdsman at 3J Farms, manages his own herd of Simmentals and breeds cows for many neighboring cattlemen as a certified AI technician.

The Herdsman of the Year nomination form for Gibson covered it perfectly, “Gibson has a world-class character and all of the desirable traits of a true herdsman. He has a keen eye and a knack at both finding and aligning himself with those who can help him learn and improve as a herdsman and grow as a person. He has historically and continues at present to take jobs in real-world cattle situations; managing cow herds and fitting cattle for others. It has been his ability to take what he has learned through work experience and apply it to his own operation successfully that has gained him respect from his Simmental peers. Gibson is the kind of junior that the Simmental breed should be proud to turn out into the industry.”

PTP Updates and reminders for all four major PTP shows: American Royal, North American International Livestock Expo, National Western Stock Show, and Fort Worth Stock Show, are shown below.

Heifer Pregnancy Verification and Breeding Soundness Exams: exhibitors of females 18 months of age or older must provide documentation certifying the female as pregnant by a licensed non-owner veterinarian or have certification that she has been used in embryo transfer. Documentation must be provided in order to be eligible to show.

In addition, for those of you planning to show bulls; Bulls 15 months of age or older must have veterinary proof of being a satisfactory potential breeder, be it a semen test and/or a breeding soundness exam (BSE). (Approved by the ASA Board, April 27, 2013)

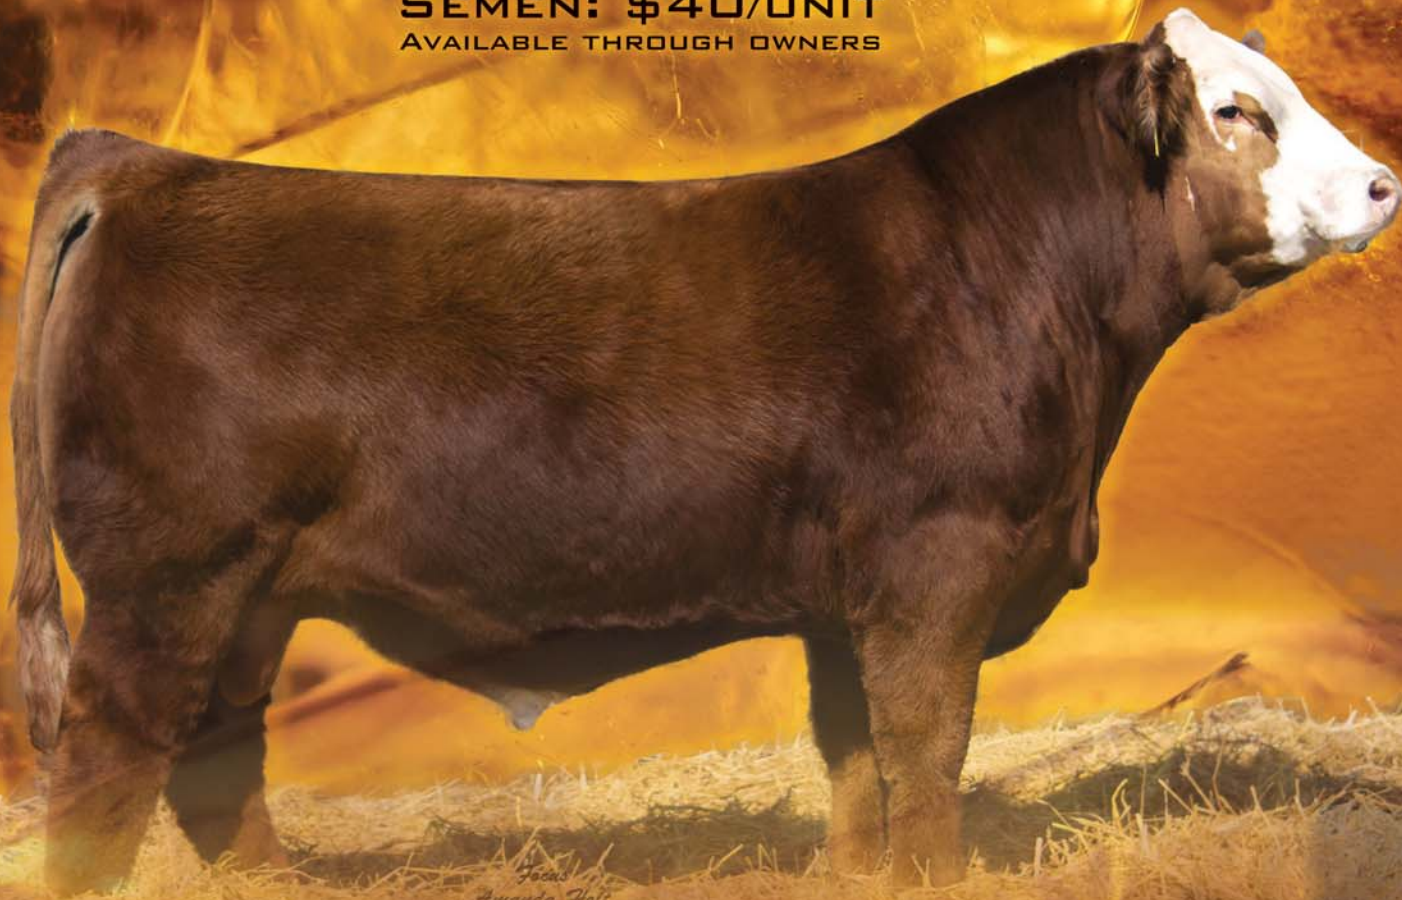

Please keep this in mind this fall as you make your show plans and schedule vet appointments. Be sure to bring the appropriate documentation with you.

Once again this fall the ASA staff will be stamping registration papers. This stamp is a seal of Tattoo Verification designed to alleviate the long lines of cattle at check-in. If you plan to exhibit your animal at multiple major PTP shows (American Royal, North American, Denver, Fort Worth, AJSA Regional & National Classics) consider getting your papers stamped at the first one. Once your papers are stamped you will not have to bring your animal to check-in (unless weights or scrotal measurements are being collected), you'll only have to bring your registration papers to the check-in tables. Avoid holding your cattle in line on the cement at the next show by getting your registration papers stamped!

GENOMIC-ENHANCED EPDs—FIND THE BEST FASTER!

The Simmental, SimAngus™, Simbrah and SimAngus HT Genomic Profile is now available from the American Simmental Association (ASA) through its partnership with GeneSeek®.

Genomic-enhanced EPDs (GE-EPDs) provide:

- Confidence: The ASA GeneSeek Genomic Profiler™ (GGP-HD) was developed by a team of scientists using almost 3,000 genotypes and millions of phenotypes.
- Accuracy: When paired with ASA's multi-breed genetic evaluation, test results increase the EPD accuracy on Simmental, SimAngus, Simbrah and SimAngus HT animals.
- Simplicity: Along with adding EPD accuracy, a single DNA sample can provide information on parentage, genetic defects, coat color and horned/poled status.
- Value: At $90 for 80K technology and parentage, the ASA profile is one of the best values in the business.

To start using the power of the Simmental, SimAngus, Simbrah and SimAngus HT profile, please contact the American Simmental Association at 406-587-4531.

Four Trustee Positions Open

A total of four Trustee positions are open in three of the four regions as follows:

Eastern Area: No election for 2015-2016.

North Central: Dr. Calvin Drake, Manhattan, KS (term limited; not eligible for re-election).

South Central: Tim Smith, Giddings, TX (eligible for re-election).

Western: Bob Lanting, Twin Falls, ID (not eligible for re-election, but can serve an additional year as immediate past chairman). Susan Russell, Sugar City, CO (term limited; not eligible for re-election).

Have you told your story lately?

Most of us in the beef industry are happy to go to work day in and day out doing our part to ensure our consumers have safe, nutritious, and tasty quality protein on their plates. Speaking out for the beef industry is usually not on our "To do" list. It can be uncomfortable to do and it is not our biggest priority for the day. However, if we continue to be silent about our industry, we may lose the opportunity to speak in favor of raising, finishing, harvesting, and eating delicious and nutritious beef. We are up against people whose "job" is to shut down animal agriculture. Our opponents wake up every day with a priority list aimed at stopping beef production (and other facets of agriculture). The consumer is stuck in the middle with onslaughts of inaccurate information coming to them from TV commercials, social media, "news" stories, and celebrity "experts".

At the Summit conference in Bozeman, Ryan Goodman, blogger for Agriculture Proud and communications manager for the Montana Stockgrowers Association, encouraged our AJSA members to become leaders in the beef advocacy front. Ryan asked us to seize any opportunity to spread the message about beef. There are many mediums for this conversation. This may be simply talking to your neighbor or the person next to you on a plane. It may be a letter to the editor in your newspaper. With electronic media readily available, this is another important platform for beef advocates to spread our message. Facebook, Twitter, blogs, YouTube, Instagram, etc. are all excellent sources to easily spread positive and accurate information about the beef industry. Goodman suggested we think outside the "ag box" and become beef ambassadors within our other interests. For instance, Ryan is a trail runner and a part of Montana's Team Beef (a running group with the Montana Beef Council). Through running, Ryan has connected with other runners, health enthusiasts, nutritionists, etc. and is spreading the message that lean beef is a healthy part of his training. Wearing a jersey picturing a juicy steak and veggies, he ran a 200 mile relay with Team Beef all the while putting a positive face to the beef industry from an unexpected source.

Ryan had six main lessons to become effective leaders in the beef advocacy movement.

1. Speak out and make it loud
2. Be real and authentic
3. Be passionate and enthusiastic
4. Keep it simple and to the point
5. Stick to your experience (you can't defend everyone)
6. Make it a candid point of view

For great examples of positive, simple, and passionate stories about agriculture, check out Ryan's blog at agriculture-proud.com. While you are on the internet, read a blog called Madison's Farm Adventures (<http://www.madisonsfarmadventures.blogspot.com/>) from an AJSA member about young life in agriculture — a fun and young look at the industry. Another prime example is a YouTube video called "Carbon Cows" by Geoff Maynard, an Australian seed-stock breeder. This short video explains how cattle are beneficial to the environment. Geoff finishes the video with this simple and passionate statement, "Cattle are mother nature's carbon capturing technology as well as a terrific source of protein for the world."

Whether you are comfortable picking up pen and paper for a letter to the editor or starting your own blog about your experiences with the beef industry, it's time to be a part of the conversation. ♦

CONNECTION

Developing leaders through friendship, networking, and communication skills!

By AJSA Trustee Morgan Phillips, Maysville, KY

As I was writing this article, I was 30,000 feet up flying over a mid-western state headed to Montana for the Summit Leadership Conference. I wasn't sure what I was going to write my first Connection article as AJSA President about and then, while staring out of my small and very dirty window, it came to me.

The AJSA is like no other junior breed association, it pulls you out of your comfort zone more than imaginable. I attended the National Junior Angus Show this past July, just as a spectator and realized that most exhibitors showed in the cattle show and that was it, no contests, just the cattle show. While their Junior National event and exhibitors are very different from ours, it is a very positive week of competitiveness and friendships much like our National Classic.

Most people who look at the Simmental Junior program and our Classic think we are crazy for making each participant at the regional and national events compete in every contest. I beg to differ. The contests that we participate in at our Classics are preparing us to be leaders of not only the Simmental breed, but the livestock and agriculture industry as a whole. We learn vital leadership skills, public speaking skills, communication skills, and make contacts with people from all across the United States. Have you ever just stopped to think how much the AJSA has helped you grow as a person? If not, maybe you should do that sometime.

I know that most of you hate the contests. If it weren't for your parents dragging you along to the AJSA National Classics because of your older sibling you wouldn't be there, but please look at the positives when you are studying for the quiz contest, or looking up a planned mating on your heifer for sales talk or standing in front of your grandma giving speech after speech trying to become a better public speaker. The skills that you gain from these contests are second to none and will help you obtain internships, jobs, as well as helping you become successful in whichever path you choose to take in life.

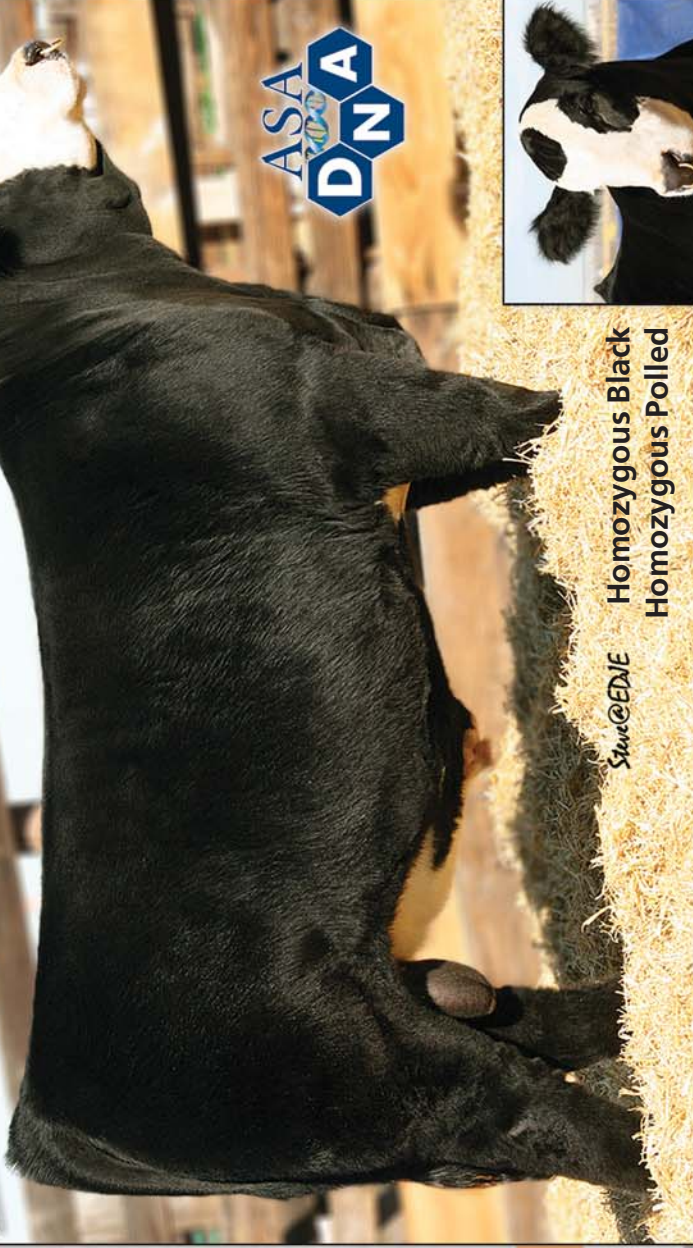

I owe thanks to my parents for making me compete in every contest since I was nine years old, these contests helped my love for the Simmental Breed and AJSA grow which led to me wanting to serve the AJSA members as President. I am looking forward to an awesome year with the other 15 members of the Junior Board, which you all have elected to lead our membership for the upcoming year. If any of you have questions or concerns regarding national, regional, contest prep, or anything else, please don't hesitate shooting me an email or giving me a call. Everyone have a great fall and I hope to see you all soon!

Carcass Merit Sire Evaluation Program

Each year, bull owners commit thousands of dollars to get unbiased evaluation for the next generation of genetically influential young candidate sires. For SimGenetic users, this information is critical for building significant accuracy for economically important EPDs.

MEET THE TEAM

This is the sixth and final installment in a series designed to “personalize” ASA’s team of Field Service Representatives so that the membership can become more familiar with individual credentials and more easily recognize names, faces and responsibilities.

Daniel Ulmanis, Koshkonong, MO

Danny Ulmanis was raised on a registered Angus operation, located near the small town of Koshkonong, MO, where he still resides. He is involved the family cattle operation and a family-owned feed store, located in nearby Thayer. In addition, he is the process of establishing his own artificial insemination business.

In the fall of 2011, he interrupted his studies at the University of Missouri to accept a calving internship with the American Simmental Association, an experience that led him to remote central Montana where he worked with calving teams from Montana State University on herds involved in ASA’s innovative carcass merit program.

Following the completion of that four-month internship, he finished his degree work, graduating with a degree in Agricultural Business in 2012. It was at that point that he returned home to join his parents and younger sister in their cattle and feed store operation. Their operation, known as the “Bub” Ranch, markets 100 to 125 head of Angus bulls annually, making efficient use of a number of cooperator herds.

Ulmanis served as ASA’s calving intern in 2011.

“We focus on production of cattle that can thrive in the rugged fescue pasture that is the lifeblood of grazing in the Southern Missouri Ozark Mountains,” he explained.

“I’m still helping grow our operation and we bought our first Simmental pair last fall. In my opinion, one of the most significant contributions that Simmental has brought to the industry is how well it crosses with Angus,” he said. “The SimAngus™ cross is one of the best ways for commercial breeders of 30 or fewer head to utilize crossbreeding.”

He credits the ASA for its approach to breeding based on technology. “The ASA staff and membership have a unique place in the beef industry by meshing science with real-world common sense to make a real difference,” he added.

In addition to his contributions working through the ASA field staff, Ulmanis also provides assistance at Simmental Progress Through Performance (PTP) shows.

“One of my favorite pastimes is to drive slowly through a pasture and talk about our cows, or someone else’s cows, for that matter,” he concluded. “I feel I can advise cattlemen on their marketing plan and also consult on the kind of breeding program that best fits their environment.”

Bill Zimmerman, Foley, MN

Not only does Bill Zimmerman serve as an ASA Field Representative, but he doubles as manager of the entire 15-member crew, coordinating appearances and assigning responsibilities.

Born in Aurora, IL, Zimmerman graduated from high school in Indianapolis, then went to Arizona State for a BA in Education, picked up his BS in Animal Science and an MS in Animal Breeding and Genetics from Utah State and a Master of Business Administration from St. Cloud State.

His interest in livestock production traces back to his paternal grandparents who were early Charolais breeders and also raised Columbia and Suffolk sheep. He’s been involved in the cattle industry in some capacity ever since 1972. Currently, his “One Penny Ranch,” named in honor of his wife, markets Simmental, SimAngus™, Charolais, Angus and Lim-Flex bulls and bred females.

Zimmerman’s relationship with Simmental dates back to the early 1970s, when he purchased some Simmental females from the late Harmon Killebrew, the Hall-of-Fame Minnesota Twins baseball player. “He was a native of Idaho and had been among the earliest Simmental breeders. Harmon was a very friendly man, totally unimpressed with his own importance,” Zimmerman recalled. “My first contact with ASA occurred in 1976 when I attended a Summer Conference in West Yellowstone.”

He has also served as an elementary classroom teacher; as an Extension Educator in Minnesota, Utah and Nevada; worked for a brief time with the USDA Polish-American Extension Project in Western Poland; spent four years on the staff of BEEF Magazine; had a three-year term with Pfizer Animal Health; operated a dairy and veterinary supply business; marketed semen for Curtiss Breeders; and managed a Simmental and irrigated farm in Southern Idaho.

Heavily involved in beef industry organizations, he was recently elected to the Genex Board of Directors; has served on several NCBA committees, including Cattle Health and Well-Being, Nominating, Issues Management, and Producer Education; and has been active in several state cattle and breed associations.

Zimmerman married Penny in 1972, and they’re the proud parents of four children and grandparents to 19. In her own right, Penny is active on the national beef cattle scene, and presently serves as vice president of the American National CattleWomen, after previously leading the Minnesota CattleWomen as that organization’s president. ♦

WE GET VISITORS

Professional Bullfighters Drop In

Josh Rivinius, a commercial Simmental breeder from Elgin, North Dakota, and Frank Newsome, a Texas native now living in Oklahoma, visited the ASA office in late July. Both are among the elite cadre of cowboy-saving professional rodeo bullfighters, who stay busy on the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association (PRCA) and Professional Bull Riders (PBR) circuits. They were in Montana to work a PBR event at Big Sky, 45 miles south of the ASA headquarters in Bozeman.

Rivinius (left) and Newsome, in Bozeman to work a PBR event.

Rivinius was featured in the January 2014 issue of SimTalk. He maintains a herd of about 100 mostly red Simmental cows and as a bullfighter, works primarily on a regional basis. He has worked the College National Finals Rodeo and several of the most prestigious shows in the area, including Rapid City, Deadwood, and Billings. "After that SimTalk article appeared, I received a huge number of calls from people, some of them cattlemen, some rodeo acquaintances, some that I hardly knew," he commented.

Newsome, whose father runs a small herd of Simmental near Granbury, Texas, is a full-time bullfighter. Much in demand, he has worked two PRCA finals in Las Vegas. Al Sandvold, a Bozeman resident who also fights bulls on a part-time basis and is well-acquainted with Rivinius and Newsome, calls the pair "as good as there are." By Sandvold's estimate, Newsome has faced upwards of 30,000 often-cantankerous bulls during his highly successful career. ♦

Innovative Electronic Marketing

A new service, being developed by AgriClear, a division of the TMX group, is being advertised to allow cattle buyers and sellers to trade cattle from their computers, smart phones or tablets.

Use of the online system costs buyers and sellers $6 per head. There are no listing fees — the transaction fees are paid once the buyer and seller agree on the sale. The service has a built-in system of payment assurance. The buyer places money in a custodial account prior to the cattle shipment. Once the cattle arrive, the funds are released to the seller. Additional information is available at <https://agriclear.com/>.

Heinz Absorbs Kraft Foods

H.J. Heinz Company has purchased Kraft Foods, creating one of the largest food and beverage conglomerations in the world — with annual revenue in excess of $28 billion. Shares of Kraft Foods immediately jumped by more than 14%. Annual cost savings due to increased efficiency for the combined corporation are expected to top $1.5 billion by 2017.

The combined company, which is now the third largest of its kind in North America, will own Kraft, Heinz, Oscar-Mayer, Ore-Ida and other brands. It will maintain headquarters in Pittsburgh, where Heinz is based and also in the Chicago area, where Kraft Foods resides.

McDonald's Dropping Deforestation Sources

The McDonald's Corporation, a world leader in food sustainability efforts, has pledged to end deforestation caused by production of commodities in its vast supply chain, focusing on beef, coffee, palm oil, poultry and packaging.

The company has said it has begun developing specific time-bound targets for the raw materials it sources this year and would help small farmers, plantation owners and suppliers to comply with its commitment.

OnLine Grocery Shopping Tested

The Iowa-based Hy-Vee Company is moving ahead with a program called Hy-Vee Aisles Online. Being offered in selected stores are in-home grocery delivery and in-store pickup options. Shoppers visit an online store and complete their orders, an employee then fills the order, the items are scanned loaded and delivered. Or, shoppers can arrange to pick up their order in person.

The services is priced at $4.95 for a delivery order and $2.95 for in-store pickup. If the total order surpasses $100, the fee is dropped. Such sales at Hy-Vee and other stores are estimated to exceed $18 billion within three years. The practice has been in use in Europe for several years. ♦

BEEF BUSINESS

MARC Exonerated

A panel of outside researchers has found no evidence of animal abuse or mistreatment at USDA's Meat Animal Research Center (MARC), Clay Center, NE. Even though no abuses were found, USDA ordered that some new procedures must be implemented before any new research could be started.

The investigation followed allegations contained in a New York Times article of abuse at the facility. The article provoked outrage from animal rights activists and led USDA Secretary Tom Vilsack to call for a quick review. The four-member team said, "Without exception, the panel observed healthy and well-cared-for animals."

Judge Strikes Down Abuse Law

A federal judge has struck down an Idaho law which had banned undercover documentation of animal abuse at livestock operations, ruling that it violated free speech and other constitutionally guaranteed rights. The law had been crafted in response to a video released by animal-rights activists showing workers dragging a cow by a chain around its neck.

The judge agreed with a suit filed by groups, including the American Civil Liberties Union, the Animal Legal Defense Fund, that sought to overturn the statute, on the grounds that the so-called "ag-gag" law violated protections under the First Amendment. Attorneys for the state of Idaho had argued that the law was designed to protect private property and the privacy of agricultural facility owners.

New Climate Change Strategy

USDA has established a new national climate change strategy aimed at reducing emissions from the agricultural and forestry sectors. USDA is offering to partner with ranchers on a voluntary and incentive-based approach to implement techniques and programs that support a reliable food supply.

Supporters of the concept see it as a "step in the right direction," recognizing that farmers aren't alone." Opponents, who strongly believe that climate change is natural and therefore non-responsive to man's efforts, label the move as "unnecessary government overreach."

Checkoff Support Remains Strong

Support for the Beef Checkoff remains strong, according to a random annual survey, conducted by Aspen Media. More than three out of four producers (76%) continue to support the program. The survey also found that 10% of producers are opposed to it with 14% undecided.

Other results: 1) 81% say the Checkoff has helped to contribute to a positive trend in beef demand; 2) 71% say the Checkoff contributes to the profitability of their operations; 3) 71% say the Checkoff "represents their interests", and 4) 68% believe the program is "well-managed."

Consumers Seek Value

As a group, Americans value the nutrition and balance that meat and poultry products deliver in their diet. That's according to a recent report released by the North American Meat Institute (NAMI) and the Food Marketing Institute (FMI).

The report found that 79% of shoppers put some or a lot of effort into making sure they make nutritious and balanced meat and poultry choices. For meat products, consumers perceive the nutrient values of iron and protein, while poultry is prized for the balanced it provides and their contributions toward maintaining a healthy weight.

Shopper Trends Revealed

The Food Marketing Institute (FMI) has released the results of its 41st annual "US Grocer Shopper Trends" survey, which reveals a sharp shift in shopping and mealtime habits, demonstrating new patterns of buying.

The study found that more and more members of the family are getting involved in grocery shopping, with 83% of US adults now participating in at least half of the family food purchases. In previous surveys, grocery buying was primarily the responsibility of the woman of the home. As more and more men share meal preparation, they are also sharing shopping.

Disaster Damage Hits Ag Hard

Nearly one fourth of damages brought on by natural disasters in the developing world is borne by the agricultural sector, according to a study by the United Nations. An analysis of 78 disasters over a 10-year period showed that 22% of all damages registered within agriculture. However, just 4.5% of post-disaster relief targeted agriculture.

"Disasters" were described as such natural occurrences as drought, floods, hurricanes,

Tornadoes, tsunamis, volcanic eruptions and earthquakes. Asia was the most-affected continent, followed by Africa. ♦

THE CUTTING EDGE

Feed Directive Published

The US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has released its Veterinary Feed Directive (VFD) final rule, a significant piece of the agency's overall strategy to promote and assure judicious use of antimicrobials in food-producing animals. The strategy is designed to bring the utilization of these drugs under veterinary supervision.

The rule outlines the process for authorizing use of animal drugs that are intended for use in or on animal feed that require supervision of a licensed veterinarian. It also provides veterinarians in all states with a framework for authorizing use of medically important antimicrobials when needed for specific animal purposes.

Animal Antibiotic Sales Rise

Public Health groups have urged the Obama Administration to take aggressive action to limit and track use of antibiotics in cattle, swine, chickens and other food animals after the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) reported a sharp increase in sales in the four-year period between 2009 and 2013.

An FDA report measuring antibiotic sales that are medically significant to humans, said the amount used in food animals jumped by 20% during that four-year time period. A total of 32.6 million pounds of antibiotics were sold and approved domestically in 2013 alone, 60% of which are medically important to humans.

Salt Limits DDGS Intake

A study conducted by Kansas State University has found that providing growing cattle with dried distillers grains (DDGS) plus salt on a self-feeding basis while the animals graze native pastures helped boost average daily weight gain without the expenses linked to daily delivery such as fuel and labor.

DDGS are a product of ethanol production and are commonly fed to beef cattle, particularly in areas where ethanol is produced. Most ethanol is produced from corn, but can also be made from other feed stuffs such as sorghum or wheat.

Ebola Vaccine, Using Cattle Safe

Early-stage trials of an experimental Ebola vaccine have found that the vaccine appears to be safe, and triggered robust production of Ebola-fighting antibodies, Scientists have reported.

The trials tested a vaccine called VSV-ZEBOV, which was developed at the Public Health Agency of Canada and is licensed to NewLink Genetics Corporation and then to Merck & Company. It consists of a cattle virus that has been engineered to carry Ebola genes, which then produce proteins meant to trigger production of anti-Ebola antibodies. ♦

Global Exports Headed to Record

Global beef exports could reach a record 10.2 million tons during 2015, according to the latest Livestock and Poultry World Markets and Trade report from USDA. That estimate is up 3% from the last report issued in October 2014.

Larger shipments from India, and to a lesser extent, the EU and Paraguay more than offset declines by Brazil, Uruguay and the US. However, imports by a number of oil-reliant countries, such as Russia, are expected to decrease due to declining oil revenues and weaker currencies. India has increased its lead over Brazil as the world's largest exporter of beef, with much of India's total attributed to buffalo rather than "sacred" cattle.

US Beef Sales Rise in DR

Many smaller global markets are posting impressive growth, including the Dominican Republic (DR) where US exports increased by 73% during 2014 in volume and 63% in value, to a record $55.5 million.

The US is the dominant supplier of beef to the DR, and accounted for 10% of the country's total beef supply during the year. January, 2015 exports were off to a fast start, tripling the figures for January, 2014. US beef gained traction traces back to 2006, when the Dominican Republic Free Trade Agreement was implemented.

Fed Cattle Market Opportunities

US beef and pork producers may have increased access to the potentially lucrative Mexican and Peruvian markets, under the terms of two trade agreements negotiated between USDA and those Latin American countries.

A projection by USDA economists says that the move could lead to a $15 million boost in live cattle sales to Mexico. The agreement with Peru, which expands sales of fresh and chilled pork, estimates an increase of about $5 million annually. Peru follows the lead of Chile, which loosened its own restrictions one year ago.

Prohibited Meat, Pests Intercepted

US Customs and Border Protection agriculture specialists stationed at the Dallas/Fort Worth International Airport intercepted one of the most feared pests, the Khapra beetle, from a passenger's luggage. The immature insects were discovered inside bean seeds. The Khapra beetle is considered the world's most destructive insect for its ability to destroy stored grain, cereal and other stored foods.

The same passenger, when submitted to a baggage inspection, was also discovered to have a large quantity of cooked, boneless beef, along with cooked and minced sheep meat. ♦
